

BRITISH HERPETOLOGICAL SOCIETY
MISSION STATEMENT

The British Herpetological Society seeks to promote all forms of interest in amphibians and reptiles, including the keeping and breeding of animals in captivity, conservation of wild populations, education of the general public concerning the importance of amphibians and reptiles, and scientific research into all aspects of their biology. The Society encourages membership from all age groups and from all countries of the world, and publicises its work through meetings and a range of publications.